

Under 18 System for Sona/HPR participation

Students under 18 years of age may not legally participate in any HPR/SONA experiments. The Department of Psychology has created special options for students under 18 to meet the 7 hours of participation requirement for PSY101 courses (and other courses).

If you will not turn 18 until after the end of the semester, you may still obtain all of your required hours, but you must do so using the special system.

If you are currently under 18 but will turn 18 at some point during the semester, you may still use the underage system. We recommend that you use this system to obtain all of your required hours and then when you turn 18, you may switch to the regular Sona system to obtain any extra credit that is offered in your course.

Before using the underage system, you will still need to create an account on Sona. You can do that using this link: <https://msu-psychology.sona-systems.com/>

To gain access to this system, please contact Audra Jeffrey (jeffre22@msu.edu).
